State Record Claimed For Thursday's Races

Nine Heats Go In 2:10 Or Faster

New Track Mark Of 2:04 3-5 Set

Pickaway County is laying claim to a state record as the result of Thursday's harness racing program at the county fair.

The record: nine heats in one afternoon, none slower than 2:10. And while that claim was being posted, a new record was established as a six-year-old bay horse chalked up a new mark for the local track.

The horse was My Volo who toured the lightning fast local oval Thursday afternoon in 2:04 3-5—bettering the previous record set here in 1948.

My Volo set the mark in the first heat of the $1,000 Merchants Free-for-All Pace and then came back in the third heat of the same event to duplicate the time.

In setting the new track record, My Volo rubbed out the 1948 mark established by the late Betty Brewer whose notch was 2:05 flat.

THE TRACK record on the trot still stands at 2:05 2-5. It was chalked up in 1948 by Frontiersman.

In staking a claim for the state record for county fair harness racing, local officials pointed out that even on big time tracks where they have the advantage of a full mile track, it is seldom that such blazing speeds are recorded.

Only one horse went the 2:10 speed; all other times were faster, running down the list to My Volo's record.

THE 2:10 SPEED was recorded by Air Pilot, the pacing stallion owned by George W. VanCamp of Circleville, secretary of the local fair's speed program.

Air Pilot, a three-quarter brother to the great Greyhound, is a favorite on the local track win lose or draw. Thursday, Air Pilot was in his prime, showed no sign of breaking and running afoul (as has been his custom on occasion) and he went to the wire without being decked out with oversized blinders, ears stuffed with cotton or even a tin can strapped under his chin.

Air Pilot merely showed his real stuff. And he chalked up a new personal record—2:07 1-5 on a half-mile track.

The genial VanCamp was in the sulky when this mark was (Continued on Page 9)

Waxy Gordon Held As Head Of Dope Ring

NEW YORK, Aug. 3—Irving "Waxy" Gordon, onetime pick-pocket who rode from the Bowery to Park Avenue on a stream of illicit dollars from Prohibition beer, rackets and black markets, was arrested last night leading a four-car dope convoy.

Early today authorities, reporting that further arrests are impending in a coast-to-coast dope ring assertedly headed by Gordon, acted to "take him out of society—for good."

Federal authorities said that the 62-year-old Gordon, who once described himself before a judge as "a former Bowery waif," was seized by federal narcotics agents and New York police with 17 1-2 ounces of uncut heroin on his lap.

Elsewhere in the convoy officials said they found 26 1-2 ounces of heroin and 140 to 174 ounces of an unidentified drug.

Authorities said that the heroin, when cut and put on the market, would make 200,000 pills with a retail value of $600,000.

Gordon and three of his lieutenants seized with him were arraigned early today on conspiracy charges before U. S. Commissioner Edward McDonald. Gordon, whose real name is Irving Wexler, was ordered held in $250,000 bail.

Sammy Kass, a notorious gangster and Gordon's chief lieutenant for years, was held in $100,000 bail as was Ben Katz. Kass was said to be the kingpin of the dope racket in New Jersey. Arthur Repola was held in $50,000.

County Fair Curtain Slated To Fall At Midnight Friday

Officials of Pickaway County Agricultural Society Friday reluctantly prepared to ring down the curtain on the 1951 county fair, fully convinced that this year's show far surpassed quality of previous farm expositions here.

By midnight Friday, the agricultural parade will have been completed and the old fairgrounds will become quiet, but still ready for another farm show.

Friday will end the agricultural fair on an appropriate note; it is called Farm Machinery Day.

Preliminaries in the 4-H Club Tractor rodeo started at 9 a. m. A heavy entry list indicated that the prelims might run even as late as 2:15 p. m.—scheduled time for the finals.

Entries closed at noon Friday for the tractor-pulling contest and this event was to have been staged on the race track fronting the grandstand at 3 p. m. immediately following the tractor rodeo finals.

Two major events are on tap for Friday night.

At 7:30 p. m., the English-Western combination horse show will be staged. This will be the first year in Pickaway County history that the two types of horse shows will be combined into one program.

At 8 p. m., the eagerly-awaited annual 4-H livestock sale will be conducted in the main show barn.

Into this public auction will go the top prize winners of this year's fair. Topping that list are:

1. The 980-pound Hereford steer raised and groomed by Myrtle Mae Brown of Madison Township and holder of the big blue ribbon—grand champion beef steer.

2. The 180-pound cross-breed Chester White—Hampshire pig entered by Jim LeValley of Atlanta—holder of the title of grand champion market pig.

3. The grand champion market lamb showed by Robert Peck, also of Atlanta.

Reserve champions in each class also will be placed on the block and be sold to the highest bidders. They are: Paul Teegardin Jr.'s Short-horn steer, Marvin Spangler's market pig and Minnie Davey's market lamb.

Following these there will come a long list of prime steers, pigs and lambs—all in tiptop condition and all representing a year of patient labor by the county's farm youngsters.

In all cases, the bidding price is expected to be well above current livestock market tags.

And in the case of each sale, the youthful owner probably will invest his income in another entry or two for the 1952 county fair.

The schedule for the balance of Friday follows:

7 p. m. Free Act—"The Campbells"—Platform—Midway

NO OVER-ALL CHAMPION SELECTED

4-H Dairy Cattle Judging Brings 4 Different Crowns

Barbara Stoer, Avonell Thomas, Ralph Oldaker and David Thomas collected championships Thursday during the 1951 4-H Club dairy show, final junior livestock judging event of this year's Pickaway County Fair.

Because no champion of show over all breeds was selected during the contest, each of the four youngsters shared equally in the limelight.

All four 4-H'ers achieved the distinction of having exhibited the best of the breed in which they entered their animals during the show.

Miss Stoer of the Future Farmers of Monroe collected the top honor of the Jersey show during the day with the champion Jersey female.

Miss Thomas of the Westfall 4-H Club proudly exhibited the championship entry in the Holstein class in the show.

RALPH OLDAKER of the Walnut Wonder Workers Club exhibited the champion ship Guernsey female.

And David Thomas of the Washington Hillclimbers won the top honor in the Ayrshire breed, in which only two other animals were shown.

Jack Tarbill of Perry Township Junior Farmers Club exhibited the lone Brown Swiss animal of this year's show.

Competition was rather light in the Ayrshire and Jersey classes in this year's 4-H Club dairy show, although lack of depth in those two breeds was made up in the abundance of entries in the Holstein and Guernsey classes.

Unlike last year's show, which began at 9 a. m. and lasted until about 6 p. m., this year's competition was ended in regulation time at about 3:30 p. m., although the number of animals in both shows was just about the same both years.

Fred Carpenter of the Flying Farmers of Muhlenberg was singled out for top honors following the regulation dairy show when he was selected as this year's dairy cattle showmanship champion.

Carpenter topped a field of about 14 entries in the showmanship contest, his ability at presentation of his animal winning for him one of the most coveted titles of 4-H dairy work.

SECOND TO the champion dairy showman was Albert A. Carpenter, his sister, of the same club, while Virginia Garrett of the Darby Fine and Dandy Club ranked third.

Muhlenberg's Flying Farmers also achieved top honors following the regulation show by exhibiting the best club group of four dairy animals.

Next to Muhlenberg in the special class were the Future

Farmers of Monroe, while Darby Fine and Dandy was third.

News Briefs From Fair

Among the articles found on the racetrack during the fair were a set of keys, a knee boot for a harness horse, mouthpiece for a trombone and one rabbit's foot.

Vocalists who sang the "Star Spangled Banner" prior to the three afternoons of harness racing were Mrs. Dorothy Jonas and Miss Jeannine Bell, both of Circleville.

Folks who found evenings chilly on the fairgrounds were surprised to discover that the chill was only at ground level; it was pleasantly warm atop the ferris wheel.

One of the most popular spots on the fairgrounds during the heat of the day is a 1,800-gallon tank of ice water on the west side of the coliseum, supplied by Pickaway Dairy Co-op.

With each day of the fair the tank used by performers in the "Diving Sensations" high dive act has been getting stickier and stickier. Water has been supplied by the George Van Camp tanker, used throughout the year as a tar spreader. In addition to the tar, oatmeal was used to help stop up leaks in the canvas-lined tank.

Larry Best, county extension agent, had words of praise Friday for the "grand job" in livestock exhibited by the 4-H Club boys and girls of Pickaway County during this year's fair. He sent the youngsters off with a "well done" following each of the outstanding club shows.

But Best gave even more praise to the club advisers and parents of the club members. He said: "Some of the parents just don't take an interest, but they are few. The advisers and parents have worked hard, and if it were not for them I am not

Dairy Co-op Manager Works Hard Finding A Butter-Churning Dog

The mongrel had no enthusiasm for the task at all. He was even too bored to bark.

He stood on the treadmill of an old fashioned butter churn, too blasé to even look up into the face of the man who had put him there.

"It works," muttered Russell Palm, stroking the mongrel's head. "I know it works. And I'm going to see it work if it costs me a fortune in hamburger. Feed him another bit."

A little boy standing at the other end of the treadmill held out a piece of hamburger. The mongrel stretched his neck. Sniffed. Snapped. But his feet remained still.

All this took place in Pickaway Fairgrounds in an exhibit tent put up by Pickaway Dairy Co-op. The gadget Co-op Manager Palm was trying to demonstrate was a century-old, dog-powered butter churn.

"I got this animal from the dog pound," explained Palm, mopping the perspiration from

War Chance Nil, Solon Is Claiming

Army-Navy Funds May Be Slashed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3—The U. S. Senate's leader on military appropriations declared today there is "not the slightest danger of war" and came out for cuts in Army-Navy funds.

Chairman O'Mahoney, (D) Wyo., of the Senate appropriations subcommittee declined to speculate on the amount of the slash he or his unit would favor. But he said:

"I don't believe there is the slightest danger of war. Russia prefers the bloodless method of promoting economic collapse. Our problem is to find methods of cutting military expenditures for traditional operations of the Army and Navy."

O'Mahoney is the second leading administration figure this week to balk at huge federal expenditures.

Chairman Connally, (D) Tex., of the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee on Monday blasted what he charged was the administration's desire to take care of the "whole free world" with "the taxpayers' money."

PRESIDENT Truman, however, said in Detroit last Saturday that the Soviet rulers have not given up its "ideas of world conquest," and added:

"They are putting themselves in the position where they can commit new acts of aggression at any time."

O'Mahoney's subcommittee is in the midst of closed hearings on the administration's request for $80.6 billion for home defense.

This does not include the cost of the Korean war, foreign military aid and other defense expenditures which are apt to boost total requests to $80 billion.

The nation's top military leaders are appearing in secret before the O'Mahoney subcommittee.

O'Mahoney and some members of his unit are strong advocates of air expansion. Sen. Wherry, (R) Neb., a committee member, urges 150 air groups and proposes absorbing some of the expense by trimming Army-Navy expenditures.

O'Mahoney said he will call members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to testify before getting down to brass tacks on any cuts.

O'Mahoney said he feels more strongly than ever now that this country must have unquestioned mastery of the air.

WHILE FARMER Raymond T. Bailey sits disconsolately in background, New York sanitation department men empty his bushel baskets of stringbeans into garbage truck at Bronx terminal market. Bailey hauled them to market to sell for $2 a bushel minimum. He was offered from 25 cents to a dollar top. He said the baskets cost 25 cents apiece, picking cost 50 cents a bushel, and there were seed and fertilizer costs. So he decided to dump them rather than sell.

DEADLOCK CONTINUING

Another Session Booked As UN, Reds Hold Firm

KAESONG, Aug. 3—The Allies notified the Reds at another "no progress" truce meeting today they intend to hold their battlefront above Parallel 38 in the face of "political desires" to "subdivide" already divided Korea.

They told the Communists, moreover, that the present balance of military power in Korea—including the relative air and naval strengths of both sides—must be preserved in any cease-fire agreement.

The Reds however refused for an eighth straight day to abandon their demand for an armistice line astride the 38th Parallel. But a possible wavering in their insistence was discerned in the fact their top delegate tried for nearly two hours to justify the Red standpoint.

Faltering hope of an agreement on the essential buffer zone issue was kept alive when another session of the deadlocked Kaesong conference was set for 11 o'clock Saturday morning (8 p. m. Friday EST).

AS IF to underscore the UN stand for a "defensible" and "realistic" truce line, Allied troops on North Korea's central front continued a limited offensive attack to gain more favorable positions.

The division-wide assault on a seven-mile front met practically no Red resistance Thursday as it smashed ahead two to three miles southeast of Kumsong, pivotal supply center of an enemy buildup area.

The air war also was carried home to the Reds as 53 B-26 bombers hammered a big storage supply section in the North Korean capital of Pyongyang during the hours of darkness before Friday's dawn. A communiqué said "large fires" and explosions were observed in the bombed area.

The parley's 18th meeting Friday was opened by Vice Adm. Charles Turner Joy, head of the five-man UN delegation.

In a 23-minute statement the crisp-spoken admiral flatly warned that the UN will not pull back from their "defensive" front-line positions above the parallel "to satisfy political desires to subdivide Korea."

This was announced by the UN supreme command following the day's tense session which lasted two hours and 33 minutes, excluding an unexplained 17-minute recess.

The UN communiqué said Gen. Nam Il, chief Red delegate, "spoke for nearly two hours attempting to justify his previously expressed view."

THAT VIEW, it was added, is "that the military demarcation line should be fixed along a parallel of latitude rather than following significant terrain features which are militarily important to the security of the UN forces."

Experienced observers at the UN truce camp near Kaesong believed Nam Il's lengthy rationalization was motivated largely by a desire to go on record with the Communist "case" for a 38th Parallel truce line. They said that if the Reds really wanted to be "tough" they would not take so much time and trouble to try to justify their stand.

Local School Building May Be Curtailed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3—The National Production Authority imposes complete controls on the construction industry today to pave the way for an estimated 40 percent cut in building starting in October.

NPA officials called a news conference for this afternoon to issue orders designed to divert scarce steel, copper and aluminum away from non-defense projects into the military program.

The new controls will affect construction of schools, hospitals, plants and factories, office buildings and stores. Officials said there is simply not enough materials for the heavy projects to go around.

(Editor's Note: Circleville board of education members were awaiting the new orders with crossed fingers. It may determine with finality whether two proposed major additions here will be completed on schedule. Under construction now is a new industrial arts building near the high school building. Contract allows 300 working days for completion. Even with all necessary material available, it is possible that no classes will be held in the new arts building during any part of the 1951-52

Army Says Honor Code Is Violated

Outside Help Used In Academic Work

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3—Army Secretary Pave announced today that he has confirmed an action discharging 90 cadets from West Point Military Academy for violations of the "code of honor."

The action was the largest mass expulsion from any of the nation's military schools. The announcement said the violations "consisted of receiving outside assistance in academic work."

The sweeping action was by far the most severe disciplinary step ever taken in the history of the nation's service schools.

The White House said that President Truman was informed of the move prior to the public announcement and approved of the action.

The names of the cadets were not made public. The authorized strength of the cadet corps at West Point is 2,496.

PACE SAID that he "deeply regrets that it is necessary to take this severe action" but that "there can be no compromise in the maintenance of high standards at West Point."

The secretary said the matter was thoroughly investigated by a board of military academy officers, and that a formal report recommending the discharge of the cadets was submitted to the Army.

The announcement disclosed why Pace recently conferred with Judge Learned Hand in New York. Hand was head of a board which reviewed the West Point findings.

Pace said the action had been recommended by Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army chief of staff, as well as the board of review. The board included Lt. Gen. Troy H. Middleton and Maj. Gen. Robert M. Banford, both retired.

Middleton is now president of Louisiana State university. Hanford is a former commander of cadets at the academy. Hand is judge of the Second U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York.

AN ACCOMPANYING statement from West Point pointed out that "in accordance with the accepted code of honor, a cadet is not permitted to seek or accept improper assistance in any of the tests presented to him in class." It added:

"If we are to retain the faith of the parents whose sons the officers of the Army must lead in battle, then we must preserve in those leaders the very highest standards not only of courage, but of integrity."

Angry Worker Butchers, Shoots Three And Self

NEW YORK, Aug. 3—A construction worker killed his sister and two other persons during a violent quarrel here early today and then shot himself.

Police said that Carron Luchie, 27, shot and stabbed his sister, Mrs. Ella Ellem, 42; a second woman, Elizabeth Kibbelen, 28, both of Queens, and Charles Crump, 47, a plumber and boarder in the Ellem home.

Luchie, who lived with his sister, brought Miss Kibbelen to the house this morning. Then, according to police, he began a heated argument with his sister and Crump.

Authorities said that Luchie suddenly turned on Crump with a razor and slashed him 80 times in the abdomen and chest. Then he turned on the two women, using both the razor and a .38-caliber pistol.

Luchie turned the gun on himself as police were breaking down the front door.

With each day of the fair the tank used by performers in the "Diving Sensations" high dive act has been getting stickier and stickier. Water has been supplied by the George Van Camp tanker, used throughout the year as a tar spreader. In addition to the tar, oatmeal was used to help stop up leaks in the canvas-lined tank.

Larry Best, county extension agent, had words of praise Friday for the "grand job" in livestock exhibited by the 4-H Club boys and girls of Pickaway County during this year's fair. He sent the youngsters off with a "well done" following each of the outstanding club shows.

But Best gave even more praise to the club advisers and parents of the club members. He said: "Some of the parents just don't take an interest, but they are few. The advisers and parents have worked hard, and if it were not for them I am not (Continued on Page Two)

Dairy Co-op Manager Works Hard Finding A Butter-Churning Dog

The mongrel had no enthusiasm for the task at all. He was even too bored to bark.

He stood on the treadmill of an old fashioned butter churn, too blasé to even look up into the face of the man who had put him there.

"It works," muttered Russell Palm, stroking the mongrel's head. "I know it works. And I'm going to see it work if it costs me a fortune in hamburger. Feed him another bit."

War Chance Nil, Solon Is Claiming

Army-Navy Funds May Be Slashed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3—The U. S. Senate's leader on military appropriations declared today there is "not the slightest danger of war" and came out for cuts in Army-Navy funds.

Chairman O'Mahoney, (D) Wyo., of the Senate appropriations subcommittee declined to speculate on the amount of the slash he or his unit would favor. But he said:

"I don't believe there is the slightest danger of war. Russia prefers the bloodless method of promoting economic collapse. Our problem is to find methods of cutting military expenditures for traditional operations of the Army and Navy."

O'Mahoney is the second leading administration figure this week to balk at huge federal expenditures.

Chairman Connally, (D) Tex., of the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee on Monday blasted what he charged was the administration's desire to take care of the "whole free world" with "the taxpayers' money."

PRESIDENT Truman, however, said in Detroit last Saturday that the Soviet rulers have not given up its "ideas of world conquest," and added:

"They are putting themselves in the position where they can commit new acts of aggression at any time."

O'Mahoney's subcommittee is in the midst of closed hearings on the administration's request for $60.6 billion for home defense.

This does not include the cost of the Korean war, foreign military aid and other defense expenditures which are apt to boost total requests to $80 billion.

The nation's top military leaders are appearing in secret before the O'Mahoney subcommittee.

O'Mahoney and some members of his unit are strong advocates of air expansion. Sen. Wherry, (R) Neb., a committee member, urges 150 air groups and proposes absorbing some of the expense by trimming Army-Navy expenditures.

O'Mahoney said he will call members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to testify before getting down to brass tacks on any cuts.

O'Mahoney said he feels more strongly than ever now that this country must have unquestioned mastery of the air.

"It works," muttered Russell Palm, stroking the mongrel's head. "I know it works. And I'm going to see it work if it costs me a fortune in hamburger. Feed him another bit."

A little boy standing at the other end of the treadmill held out a piece of hamburger. The mongrel stretched his neck. Sniffed. Snapped. But his feet remained still.

All this took place in Pickaway Fairgrounds in an exhibit tent put up by Pickaway Dairy Co-op. The gadget Co-op Manager Palm was trying to demonstrate was a century-old, dog-powered butter churn.

WHILE FARMER Raymond T. Bailey sits disconsolately in background, New York sanitation department men empty his bushel baskets of stringbeans into garbage truck at Bronx terminal market. Bailey hauled them to market to sell for $2 a bushel minimum. He was offered from 25 cents to a dollar top. He said the baskets cost 25 cents apiece, picking cost 50 cents a bushel, and there were seed and fertilizer costs. So he decided to dump them rather than sell.

DEADLOCK CONTINUING

Another Session Booked As UN, Reds Hold Firm

KAESONG, Aug. 3—The Allies notified the Reds at another "no progress" truce meeting today they intend to hold their battlefront above Parallel 38 in the face of "political desires" to "subdivide" already divided Korea.

They told the Communists, moreover, that the present balance of military power in Korea—including the relative air and naval strengths of both sides—must be preserved in any cease-fire agreement.

The Reds however refused for an eighth straight day to abandon their demand for an armistice line astride the 38th Parallel. But a possible wavering in their insistence was discerned in the fact their top delegate tried for nearly two hours to justify the Red standpoint.

Faltering hope of an agreement on the essential buffer zone issue was kept alive when another session of the deadlocked Kaesong conference was set for 11 o'clock Saturday morning (8 p. m. Friday EST).

AS IF TO underscore the UN stand for a "defensible" and "realistic" truce line, Allied troops on North Korea's central front continued a limited offensive attack to gain more favorable positions.

The division-wide assault on a seven-mile front met practically no Red resistance Thursday as it smashed ahead two to three miles southeast of Kumsong, pivotal supply center of an enemy buildup area.

The air war also was carried home to the Reds as 53 B-26 bombers hammered a big storage supply section in the North Korean capital of Pyongyang during the hours of darkness before Friday's dawn. A communiqué said "large fires" and explosions were observed in the bombed area.

The parley's 18th meeting Friday was opened by Vice Adm. Charles Turner Joy, head of the five-man UN delegation.

In a 23-minute statement the crisp-spoken admiral flatly warned that the UN will not pull back from their "defensive" front positions above the parallel "to satisfy political desires to subdivide Korea."

This was announced by the UN supreme command following the day's tense session which lasted two hours and 33 minutes, excluding an unexplained 17-minute recess.

The UN communiqué said Gen. Nam Il, chief Red delegate, "spoke for nearly two hours attempting to justify his previously expressed view."

THAT VIEW, it was added, is "that the military demarcation line should be fixed along a parallel of latitude rather than following significant terrain features which are militarily important to the security of the UN forces."

Experienced observers at the UN truce camp near Kaesong believed Nam Il's lengthy rationalization was motivated largely by a desire to go on record with the Communist "case" for a 38th Parallel truce line. They said that if the Reds really wanted to be "tough" they would not take so much time and trouble to try to justify their stand.

Local School Building May Be Curtailed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3—The National Production Authority imposes complete controls on the construction industry today to pave the way for an estimated 40 percent cut in building starting in October.

NPA officials called a news conference for this afternoon to issue orders designed to divert scarce steel, copper and aluminum away from non-defense projects into the military program.

The new controls will affect construction of schools, hospitals, plants and factories, office buildings and stores. Officials said there is simply not enough materials for the heavy projects to go around.

(Editor's Note: Circleville board of education members were awaiting the new orders with crossed fingers. It may determine with finality whether two proposed major additions here will be completed on schedule. Under construction now is a new industrial arts building near the high school building. Contract allows 300 working days for completion. Even with all necessary material available, it is possible that no classes will be held in the new arts building during any part of the 1951-52

Outside Help Used In Academic Work

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3—Army Secretary Pave announced today that he has confirmed an action discharging 90 cadets from West Point Military Academy for violations of the "code of honor."

The action was the largest mass expulsion from any of the nation's military schools. The announcement said the violations "consisted of receiving outside assistance in academic work."

The sweeping action was by far the most severe disciplinary step ever taken in the history of the nation's service schools.

The White House said that President Truman was informed of the move prior to the public announcement and approved of the action.

The names of the cadets were not made public. The authorized strength of the cadet corps at West Point is 2,496.

PAGE SAID that he "deeply regrets that it is necessary to take this severe action," but that "there can be no compromise in the maintenance of high standards at West Point."

The secretary said the matter was thoroughly investigated by a board of military academy officers, and that a formal report recommending the discharge of the cadets was submitted to the Army.

The announcement disclosed why Pace recently conferred with Judge Learned Hand in New York. Hand was head of a board which reviewed the West Point findings.

Pace said the action had been recommended by Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army chief of staff, as well as the board of review. The board included Lt. Gen. Troy H. Middleton and Maj. Gen. Robert M. Banford, both retired.

Middleton is now president of Louisiana State university. Banford is a former commander of cadets at the academy. Hand is judge of the Second U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York.

AN ACCOMPANYING statement from West Point pointed out that "in accordance with the accepted code of honor, a cadet is not permitted to seek or accept improper assistance in any of the tests presented to him in class." It added:

"If we are to retain the faith of the parents whose sons the officers of the Army must lead in battle, then we must preserve in those leaders the very highest standards not only of courage, but of integrity."

Angry Worker Butchers, Shoots Three And Self

NEW YORK, Aug. 3—A construction worker killed his sister and two other persons during a violent quarrel here early today and then shot himself.

Police said that Carron Luchie, 27, shot and stabbed his sister, Mrs. Ella Ellem, 42; a second woman, Elizabeth Kibblen, 28, both of Queens, and Charles Crump, 47, a plumber and boarder in the Ellem home.

Luchie, who lived with his sister, brought Miss Kibblen to the house this morning. Then, according to police, he began a heated argument with his sister and Crump.

Authorities said that Luchie suddenly turned on Crump with a razor and slashed him 60 times in the abdomen and chest. Then he turned on the two women, using both the razor and a 38-caliber pistol.

Luchie turned the gun on himself as police were breaking down the front door.

Local Cafe Is Visited By Intruders

The curse of a thirst apparently led visitors to a Circleville cafe Thursday night.

And it must have been the same dry feeling that persuaded them to take along 10 bottles of whiskey when they left Ab's Place of 113 East Ohio street.

All this might have been all right, except that they didn't pay for the stuff. Nor did they use the front door. There was no one in the place, so they removed the glass from a rear kitchen window.

While they were in the cafe they broke open a juke box and removed an undetermined amount of money. They also forced open a cigarette machine and took money.

Circleville police call it break-in and entry, thirst or no thirst. They are investigating.

ROOT OF VULNERABILITY

SOCIALISM, or in its broader sense Communism, has for its foundation a single formula. Since its inception socialism has stood for sharing the wealth, for taking over the other fellow's property. The socialist, in practice, would like to see a division of the fruits of somebody else's labor. The Russians are developing that idea on a global basis.

Russia has shown conclusively that it is an avowed enemy of the United States. Not because this is a capitalistic nation, nor because of any wrong it has inflicted upon the Russian people. But because of its fabulous wealth.

The United States has become the No. 1 target of Communism because its free enterprise system produced the greatest wealth, with the result that it has accumulated treasure which Russia covets. Pure socialism is little more than a vague dream, shared by many who lack the enterprise and energy to accumulate for themselves, and would profit by the labor of others.

Communism, however, goes a bit farther. The Communists are not content to dream of the distribution of wealth, but would take it by force. They have developed the socialistic idea into a practice instead of a theory. If the United States were poor, the Russians would have little interest in this country. It is this nation's great wealth which makes it vulnerable.

VACATION TIME

THE business of vacationing, now at its peak, will subside in a matter of weeks, with a suddenness that will surpass the alacrity with which it started. The pattern varies little from year to year.

In May a few persons take to the road, the mountains and the water. In June the tempo of vacationing gains a trifle, but on July 4 the country goes all out for fun away from the usual haunts and occupations and vacation time has really arrived. From then until Labor Day roads and installations and accommodations really take a beating.

But already Summer has progressed to the point that to many the vacation of 1951 is but a memory, and others are looking forward to a return to the old rut. More people than ever, according to reports, are touring this Summer, which means that more people than ever will appreciate the old homestead more fully in the weeks ahead.

It's fun to go places, but it's just as much fun to return home and take up a more mundane scheme of existence again.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Frederick Vanderbilt Field has come into the news as a millionaire Don Quixote, duelling the windmills of the law, in grim, determined hopelessness. His thin, youthful figure gives him the air more of a Hamlet than a Quixote. He rejected the disciplines of his family, his country, his god, but goes to jail for accepting the discipline of Joe Stalin.

It all seemed so unnecessary and so fruitless. Freddie used to be a gentle and lovable person, charming to a fault, gay and big-hearted. That tight mouth and fist clenched about his pipe, that fighting to be silent when his very nature should force him to speak out loud, shows what the disciplines of Communism can do to a man, once he submits to its rigidities.

When I first met Freddie, he was not a Communist. He was a mild but very confused Norman Thomas socialist who had come to the Far East on his honeymoon and was full of ideas on how to save the world.

In the 19th century, he would probably have become a clergyman, perhaps a missionary. In the period of Theodore Roosevelt, he might have fought the trusts or gone in for conservation. In the era of Franklin D. Roosevelt, he became a Communist, but with a bitterness, a vindictiveness hardly understandable to those who believe that boys and girls of good families could not possibly become Stalin's stooges. It is too often boys and girls of good families who make bad headlines.

Freddie's background was not unusual for a Vanderbilt. He lived in a marble palace on Fifth Avenue and in the magnificent estate, "Highlawn" in Lee, Mass., near Lenox and Stockbridge.

Freddie went to Hotchkiss where he encountered the mild reformism that went in those days as socialism. After that came Harvard where he made the best clubs and the "Crimson."

Field's mother was a gentle woman who managed the complicated affairs of such a household with competence and efficiency. I lived for some months of the year in the Berkshires and can say that the townspeople still remember Mrs. Field favorably.

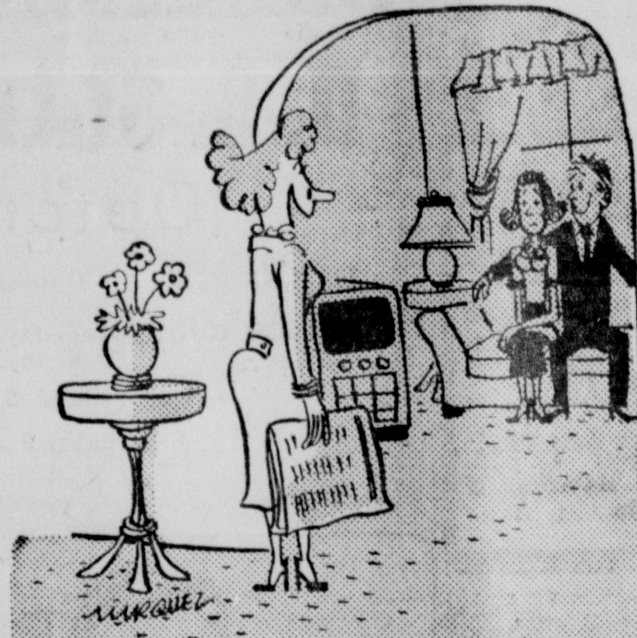

His great friendship with Joseph Barnes, at college and at the Institute of Pacific Relations, ended when his first wife left him and married Barnes. To an outsider, Freddie and his first wife seemed to be perfectly mated and very attached to each other. Often the man with his fist against his own life turns to some rigid discipline as a rationalization for the causes of his bitterness.

The tragedy in Field's life is that he rebelled against the disciplines of a society he knew and understood and yet accepted the rigid disciplines of international Communism, on account of which he is now in jail and likely to be for some time. It is this Communist discipline which forces him to lie by silence.

It is difficult to understand what pressures, intellectual or otherwise, the Communists can force upon such a person that will drive him to the extremities which Field is obviously pursuing. What urgencies are employed? What power do they exercise over him? What fears, what hopes do they engender?

The long arm of the Kremlin reaches far and plucks at all kinds and classes of persons, its horrible work to perform.

DIET AND HEALTH

Various Factors Contributing To the Problems of Sterility

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THERE are few more pathetic figures than the woman whose instincts for motherhood are thwarted by the inability to have children.

In former years it was all but taken for granted that there was no remedy for such a situation. In every case it was assumed to be due to a fundamental and irremediable defect in the wife, so that she not only bore the burden of her frustrated desire, but also the onus of a childless marriage.

Of late years, however, medical science has given more and more attention to this problem and has come up with many new facts, as well as real help for many a childless couple.

Many Causes

Today, we know that there are many causes of sterility and that the fault lies as often with the man as with the woman. But, best of all, it has been found that most such people are not really sterile, but only relatively infertile. Thus, with proper management, many of these couples can be enabled to have the children they so greatly desire.

Many cases of childlessness can be traced to nutritional deficiencies. Certain vitamins, particularly of the B-group, such as folic acid, biotin, as well as the amino acids, may have a definite effect on man's reproductive ability.

There should be sufficient iodine in the diet for those suffering from sterility. It has been found that the liver plays a very important role in hormone balance, and, when sterility problems exist, tests should be carried out to determine whether or not a liver disease is present. If found, it can be treated.

Try, Stop Me

There is a successful lawyer in Hollywood whose name has been romantically linked with at least a dozen top-flight actresses from time to time. Tendered a fiftieth birthday party by his friends, the lawyer had to stand for a great deal of good-natured kidding. Always-reliable George Jessel earned the biggest laugh by remarking, "Our esteemed guest of honor is going to be the leadoff-man on any ball team I manage. He gets to first base so often!"

There's such a thing as obeying traffic laws a little too closely. Take the case of the motorist in Columbus, Ohio, for instance, who signalled so carefully before making a right turn that a deputy sheriff stopped him to present him with one of the city's awards. It then developed that the motorist had no driver's license. The deputy sheriff joined him in the sedan and hauled him off to court.

You're Telling Me!

New York sanitation workers instituted a slowdown strike. They were after a cost-of-living increase.

Scotland Yard is having trouble with prowlers on the Buckingham palace grounds. One chap they caught is going to be presented in court.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

TONTO reached Avriilo at mid-morning and pulled the team into the hitchrack of the General Store. He gave his lists to Sid Harper, who hurriedly glanced over them. "You can load it in the buckboard," Tonto said, "but there's no hurry. I'll be in town until late in the afternoon."

"You'll have it all," Sid promised. "How's the Slash S?"

"Do I have to tell you?" Tonto grinned.

He left the store, paused on the plank sidewalk. He glanced at the Golden Saloon 1. time to glimpse Ad Gilpin's back as he pushed through the batwings. Tonto thought instantly of Bart Overby and it was just a step then to Rick Staples. Tonto's eyes moved to the stout little jail building.

Tonto was blinded for a moment when he stepped into the dark office. Gradually his eyes adjusted and he saw a man with pendulous cheeks and an immense girth sitting behind an ancient and badly scarred desk. Parts of a rifle lay all over the desk and the man rubbed an oily rag along the barrel.

"Howdy. Expected you before this, Riley. Kick yourself up a chair and sit down. Know anything about a Sharps rifle?"

"Mostly before my time," Tonto said, "but Paw had one."

"Ain't no better gun. I'm Vic Ellers. I reckon you knowed that."

Tonto didn't see the necessity to answer, so he pulled up a chair and sat down. Vic Ellers was the largest man that Tonto could remember ever having seen. His vest hung open, puckered at one side by the pin beneath the sheriff's star. Tonto doubted if the man could actually button it. His shirt was open at the collar, and a button had given away at his paunch so that it gaped at a point just above his trousers, disclosing heavy underwear.

Iron gray hair covered his high dome, made a thick, wiry tangle of his brows. His nose was a fleshy protuberance in the round moon of his face. There was hard steel in his glance, though his brown eyes were friendly enough. He grunted as he arose from his chair and walked to a gun cabinet at the far wall. He set down again with a new rifle. "I've been mad," he said, "at Grant Staples for over two years. Still mad at him, but it don't do me no good. He took a lot on himself turning you into a man hunter."

"Hain't thought of it that way," Tonto said. Ellers raised a thick hand.

"Then think about it. You mean trouble to me, young feller, one way or the other, and trouble ain't nothing but tiresome."

"I thought you might help me—"

Tonto started. Vic's elephantine snout cut him short.

"Who said I wouldn't? Only thing is, I got to decide what to do about you. I can't have you traipsing off all alone on a man-hunt. What would the law amount to in these parts? I reckon I could make you a deputy, but I don't need none."

Tonto suddenly grinned. "Is there a law that makes a deputy wear a badge?"

"Just what I was thinking," Vic grunted. He pointed a fat finger at Tonto and his brows knotted thunderously. "The law don't need no help from outside. It don't want no meddling by gents without authority. I've done everything I can on the Staples case and I'm still working on it."

He glared at Tonto, who made no reply.

"You understand what I mean?" he said.

"I savvy."

Vic pushed back from the desk and pulled out a drawer. He rummaged in it, then pitched a deputy's badge across the desk toward Tonto. He walked to the door and closed it. When he turned, the badge lay untouched.

"Well, pin it on," Vic ordered, "then stand up. Can't swear in a man proper who's settin' down."

Tonto pinned the badge to his shirt and arose. He lifted his right hand on Vic's order and gave an affirmative answer to the oath Vic rattled off. Vic sighed and returned to the door, opened it.

"Take it off and keep it out of sight. It'll protect you if you run into any gun trouble." He tugged at his chin. "I'm hereby assigning you to the Staples case for investigation."

NEW YORK—Every time you look up, somebody is announcing a new way to make the subways more livable. The newest of these is Henry Dreyfuss, an industrial designer who already has put a new gloss on the New York Central railroad's crack Twentieth Century Limited and who is no newcomer to this peculiar field, already having modernized the Hudson and Manhattan, a tubular trunk line which burrows under the river to New Jersey and brings citizens of that savage state to these refined shores.

Mr. Dreyfuss' suggestions are many: they are bright and airy and they have about them that air of progress that is at once practical and depressing. But Mr. Dreyfuss is like all the other reformers. He fails to consider that we might like—and prefer—our slough of despond.

To begin with, he would put a lot of mirrors into the subway cars, with an eye to reducing claustrophobia among the riders. This is a frightening thought. I am a man who rides the subways a reasonable amount of the time. Like my fellow passengers, I look around me and am not impressed by what I see. We are a motley crew.

I think the Lord there are not more of them and usually I shut my eyes and cast them out from my world. They do the same. Can you imagine a set of mirrors, skillfully placed so as to seemingly double, triple, quadruple the number of passengers around me?

MR. DREYFUSS ALSO WOULD WIDEN THE PLATFORMS, so "there would be no losing tide of riders into an opposing tide of eager prospective riders." Does not Mr. Dreyfuss realize this is half the fun of being a subway passenger?

Every morning the riders of the A train, coming into midtown from upper Manhattan, barrel out of their cars like popcorn shot from a gun and mingle with riders of the D train, coming down from the Bronx.

ROOT OF VULNERABILITY

SOCIALISM, or in its broader sense Communism, has for its foundation a single formula. Since its inception socialism has stood for sharing the wealth, for taking over the other fellow's property. The socialist, in practice, would like to see a division of the fruits of somebody else's labor. The Russians are developing that idea on a global basis.

Russia has shown conclusively that it is an avowed enemy of the United States. Not because this is a capitalistic nation, nor because of any wrong it has inflicted upon the Russian people. But because of its fabulous wealth.

The United States has become the No. 1 target of Communism because its free enterprise system produced the greatest wealth, with the result that it has accumulated treasure which Russia covets. Pure socialism is little more than a vague dream, shared by many who lack the enterprise and energy to accumulate for themselves, and would profit by the labor of others.

Communism, however, goes a bit farther. The Communists are not content to dream of the distribution of wealth, but would take it by force. They have developed the socialistic idea into a practice instead of a theory. If the United States were poor, the Russians would have little interest in this country. It is this nation's great wealth which makes it vulnerable.

VACATION TIME

THE business of vacationing, now at its peak, will subside in a matter of weeks, with a suddenness that will surpass the alacrity with which it started. The pattern varies little from year to year.

In May a few persons take to the road, the mountains and the water. In June the tempo of vacationing gains a trifle, but on July 4 the country goes all out for fun away from the usual haunts and occupations and vacation time has really arrived. From then until Labor Day roads and installations and accommodations really take a beating.

But already Summer has progressed to the point that to many the vacation of 1951 is but a memory, and others are looking forward to a return to the old rut. More people than ever, according to reports, are touring this Summer, which means that more people than ever will appreciate the old homestead more fully in the weeks ahead.

It's fun to go places, but it's just as much fun to return home and take up a more mundane scheme of existence again.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Frederick Vanderbilt Field has come into the news as a millionaire Don Quixote, duelling the windmills of the law, in grim, determined hopelessness. His thin, youthful figure gives him the air more of a Hamlet than a Quixote. He rejected the disciplines of his family, his country, his god, but goes to jail for accepting the discipline of Joe Stalin.

It all seemed so unnecessary and so fruitless. Freddie used to be a gentle and lovable person, charming to a fault, gay and big-hearted. That tight mouth and fist clenched about his pipe, that fighting to be silent when his very nature should force him to speak out loud, shows what the disciplines of Communism can do to a man, once he submits to its rigidities.

When I first met Freddie, he was not a Communist. He was a mild but very confused Norman Thomas socialist who had come to the Far East on his honeymoon and was full of ideas on how to save the world.

In the 19th century, he would probably have become a clergyman, perhaps a missionary. In the period of Theodore Roosevelt, he might have fought the trusts or gone in for conservation. In the era of Franklin D. Roosevelt, he became a Communist, but with a bitterness, a vindictiveness hardly understandable to those who believe that boys and girls of good families could not possibly become Stalin's stooges. It is too often boys and girls of good families who make bad headlines.

Freddie's background was not unusual for a Vanderbilt. He lived in a marble palace on Fifth Avenue and in the magnificent estate, "Highlawn" in Lee, Mass., near Lenox and Stockbridge.

Freddie went to Hotchkiss where he encountered the mild reformism that went in those days as socialism. After that came Harvard where he made the best clubs and the "Crimson."

Field's mother was a gentle woman who managed the complicated affairs of such a household with competence and efficiency. I lived for some months of the year in the Berkshires and can say that the townspeople still remember Mrs. Field favorably.

His great friendship with Joseph Barnes, at college and at the Institute of Pacific Relations, ended when his first wife left him and married Barnes. To an outsider, Freddie and his first wife seemed to be perfectly mated and very attached to each other. Often the man with his fist against his own life turns to some rigid discipline as a rationalization for the causes of his bitterness.

The tragedy in Field's life is that he rebelled against the disciplines of a society he knew and understood and yet accepted the rigid disciplines of international Communism, on account of which he is now in jail and likely to be for some time. It is this Communist discipline which forces him to lie by silence.

It is difficult to understand what pressures, intellectual or otherwise, the Communists can force upon such a person that will drive him to the extremities which Field is obviously pursuing. What urgencies are employed? What power do they exercise over him? What fears, what hopes do they engender?

The long arm of the Kremlin reaches far and plucks at all kinds and classes of persons, its horrible work to perform.

DIET AND HEALTH

Various Factors Contributing To the Problems of Sterility

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THERE are few more pathetic figures than the woman whose instincts for motherhood are thwarted by the inability to have children.

In former years it was all but taken for granted that there was no remedy for such a situation. In every case it was assumed to be due to a fundamental and irremediable defect in the wife, so that she not only bore the burden of her frustrated desire, but also the onus of a childless marriage. Of late years, however, medical science has given more and more attention to this problem and has come up with many new facts, as well as real help for many a childless couple.

Many Causes

Today, we know that there are many causes of sterility and that the fault lies as often with the man as with the woman. But, best of all, it has been found that most such people are not really sterile, but only relatively infertile. Thus, with proper management, many of these couples can be enabled to have the children they so greatly desire.

Many cases of childlessness can be traced to nutritional deficiencies. Certain vitamins, particularly of the B-group, such as folic acid, biotin, as well as the amino acids, may have a definite effect on man's reproductive ability. There should be sufficient iodine in the diet for those suffering from sterility. It has been found that the liver plays a very important role in hormone balance, and, when sterility problems exist, tests should be carried out to determine whether or not a liver disease is present. If found, it can be treated.

Try, Stop Me

There is a successful lawyer in Hollywood whose name has been romantically linked with at least a dozen top-flight actresses from time to time. Tendered a fiftieth birthday party by his friends, the lawyer had to stand for a great deal of good-natured kidding. Always-reliable George Jessel earned the biggest laugh by remarking, "Our esteemed guest of honor is going to be the lead-off man on any ball team I manage. He gets to first base so often!"

There's such a thing as obeying traffic laws a little too closely. Take the case of the motorist in Columbus, Ohio, for instance, who signalled so carefully before making a right turn that a deputy sheriff stopped him to present him with one of the city's awards. It then developed that the motorist had no driver's license. The deputy sheriff joined him in the sedan and hauled him off to court.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

TONTONTO reached Avirillo at mid-morning and pulled the team into the hitchrack of the General Store. He gave his lists to Sid Harper, who hurriedly glanced over them. "You can load it in the back-board," Tonto said, "but there's no hurry. I'll be in town until late in the afternoon."

"You'll have it all," Sid promised. "How's the Slash S?"

"Do I have to tell you?" Tonto grinned.

He left the store, paused on the plank sidewalk. He glanced at the Golden Saloon a time to glimpse Ad Gilpin's back as he pushed through the batwings. Tonto thought instantly of Bart Overby and it was just a step then to Rick Staples. Tonto's eyes moved to the stout little jail building.

Tonto was blinded for a moment when he stepped into the dark office. Gradually his eyes adjusted and he saw a man with pendulous cheeks and an immense girth sitting behind an ancient and badly scarred desk. Parts of a rifle lay all over the desk and the man rubbed an oily rag along the barrel.

"Howdy. Expected you before this, Riley. Kick yourself up a chair and sit down. Know anything about a Sharps rifle?"

"Mostly before my time," Tonto said, "but Paw had one."

"Ain't no better gun. I'm Vic Ellers. I reckon you knowed that."

Tonto didn't see the necessity to answer, so he pulled up a chair and sat down. Vic Ellers was the largest man that Tonto could remember ever having seen. His vest hung open, puckered at one side by the pin beneath the sheriff's star. Tonto doubted if the man could actually button it. His shirt was open at the collar, and a button had given away at his paunch so that it gaped at a point just above his trousers, disclosing heavy underwear.

Iron gray hair covered his high dome, made a thick, wiry tangle of his brows. His nose was a fleshy protuberance in the round moon of his face. There was hard steel in his glance, though his brown eyes were friendly enough. He grunted as he arose from his chair and walked to a gun cabinet at the far wall. He sat down again with a new rifle.

"I've been mad," he said, "at Grant Staples for over two years. Still mad at him, but it don't do me no good. He took a lot on himself turning you into a man hunter."

"Hadden't thought of it that way," Tonto said. Ellers raised a thick hand.

"Then think about it. You mean trouble to me, young feller, one way or the other, and trouble ain't nothing but tiresome."

"I thought you might help me—" Tonto started. Vic's elephantine snort cut him short.

"Who said I wouldn't! Only thing is, I got to decide what to do about you. I can't have you traipsing off all alone on a man-hunt. What would the law amount to in these parts? I reckon I could make you a deputy, but I don't need none."

Tonto suddenly grinned. "Is there a law that makes a deputy wear a badge?"

"Just what I was thinking," Vic grunted. He pointed a fat finger at Tonto and his brows knotted thunderously. "The law don't need no help from outside. It don't want no meddling by gents without authority. I've done everything I can on the Staples case and I'm still working on it."

He glared at Tonto, who made no reply.

"You understand what I mean?" he said.

"I savvy." Vic pushed back from the desk and pulled out a drawer. He rummaged in it, then pitched a deputy's badge across the desk toward Tonto. He walked to the door and closed it. When he turned, the badge lay untouched.

"Well, pin it on," Vic ordered, "then stand up. Can't swear in a man proper who's settin' down."

Tonto pinned the badge to his shirt and arose. He lifted his right hand on Vic's order and gave an affirmative answer to the oath he rattled off. Vic sighed and returned to the door, opened it.

"Take it off and keep it out of sight. It'll protect you if you run into any gun trouble." He tugged at his chin. "I'm hereby assigning you to the Staples case for investigation."

SHE FINALLY HIT THE TOP

Myrtie Mae Brown Proud Of Her Accomplishments

Few youngsters can be more proud of their accomplishments than a 17-year-old Madison Township lass.

She is Myrtie Mae Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne F. Brown of near Groveport, whose 980-pound Hereford steer Wednesday was named grand champion of the 1951 Pickaway County Fair.

A member of the Madison Livewires Livestock Club, which is advised by a brother, Wayne Brown Jr., Myrtie Brown's triumph in Wednesday's show climaxed three years of hard work by the youngster.

Three years ago, Myrtie abandoned girls' 4-H Club work to go into livestock work with the Livewires.

During the first year, the Madison Township lass won third place in the rigid steer show competition, and last year exhibited the reserve champion steer of the show, second only to fellow club member Clinton Teegardin.

With a little more hard work this year, Myrtie Mae has advanced into the throne of the beef cattle show—owner of the grand champion.

MYRTIE WAS graduated this Spring by Walnut Township school. She was the 12th youngster of the Wayne Brown family to complete schooling in the Walnut system.

In addition to being justifiably proud of her Hereford champion steer, the lass devotes much praise to the Livewires Club, which her brother guides so capably.

For the fourth straight year, the Livewires have won the club group of four beef animals, while always figuring prominently in the individual awards.

Only 10 members of the club entered projects this year, all of them faring well in competition. Paul Teegardin Jr. of the Club earned reserve championship honors in the steer contest.

Myrtie's grand champion steer was her lone entry in competition this year.

The outstanding beef animal was purchased last December from the N. G. Archer farm near Lockbourne at a weight of 550 pounds.

Fattening the animal through the Spring and early Summer, the lass was fearful that her steer would not be heavy enough to go to the top.

"DUB," MYRTIE'S nickname for the champ, came through in true championship style, though, winning its heavyweight class in breed, best of breed and finally topping all other breeds for the title.

In all, "Dub" earned three trophies, six ribbons and the grand championship Hereford banner which has been posted over the champ's stall in the first cattle tent.

Making sure that no one will overlook her champion, the lass and several willing friends early Thursday tacked up a sign at the entrance of the tent, proclaiming that the "grand champion steer" is there.

Myrtie will place the prime beef animal on the auction block during the annual 4-H Club sale at 8 p. m. Friday in the show barn.

What to do with the money is a poser for the lass, however. If this year's sale goes as past sales have gone, the youngster can expect to pocket about $600 in cash from the sale of "Dub."

Miss Brown will still be eligible to compete in the 1952 show, but was undecided Thursday whether she will enter a project in the future show.

Third in her first year project, second last year and at the top of the class this year, the Madison Township lass has cleared all of the hurdles facing her and has no more fields to conquer.

Elinor Williams'

Teen Tips

"Would it be wrong to write letters to your boy friend this Summer? asks a 'teener."

"He lives about 15 miles out of town. I like the boy very much and he likes me, too, but he hardly ever gets to town because he has to help on the farm. Please give me some advice on this."

It's OK to write to your boy friend if you keep your letters friendly and casual—not goody or affectionate, because letters sometimes are not as private as they should be.

If you see him soon, it would be a good idea to mention writing letters to see if he's for it or not. "Am I going to hear from you when you're back home?" or something similar.

But if you're not likely to see him soon, it's perfectly all right you would to any other friend—to write a chatty letter—just as saying that you were wondering how things are with him, how does he like the farm, what does he do for fun in his spare time, etc.

Tell him what goes on with people you both know or relate a funny incident that you think would interest him. Tell him if somebody has asked for him recently; everybody likes to be remembered. And ask questions to help him get started on a reply! Letter-writing isn't easy for some boys.

Wait for an answer from him

Red Journal Confirms Unrest In Bulgaria

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Officials of the Crusade for Freedom said today that their own reports of unrest in high Bulgarian Communist circles have been confirmed "straight from the horse's mouth" — the Cominform journal.

New York officials of the Crusade, which operates "Radio Free Europe" from Munich, said: "The journal confesses an 'intolerable situation' now exists among Bulgarian party leaders and that Bulgaria's Communist Party and its government are torn with dissension and purges."

For months, the radio has been broadcasting to people behind the Iron Curtain stories of unrest, not only in Bulgaria but in other Soviet satellites.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, former U. S. military governor in Germany and chairman of the Crusade, said that two more stations could be built if a drive for $3.5 million in voluntary contributions from 25 million Americans is successful.

A divorce petition has been filed in Pickaway County common pleas court by Elsie Pritchard against Eustace C. Pritchard.

The couple was married April 9, 1932, in Circleville. They have six children. The wife accuses the husband of extreme cruelty, asks for custody of all the children but a married daughter, permanent alimony and a restraining order to keep the husband from coming about the house, molesting or interfering with the plaintiff, or from disposing of property in which she has an interest.

For help with personal problems, write to Elinor Williams at this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a reply.

A divorce petition has been filed in Pickaway County common pleas court by Elsie Pritchard against Eustace C. Pritchard.

The couple was married April 9, 1932, in Circleville. They have six children. The wife accuses the husband of extreme cruelty, asks for custody of all the children but a married daughter, permanent alimony and a restraining order to keep the husband from coming about the house, molesting or interfering with the plaintiff, or from disposing of property in which she has an interest.

SHE FINALLY HIT THE TOP

Myrtie Mae Brown Proud Of Her Accomplishments

Few youngsters can be more proud of their accomplishments than a 17-year-old Madison Township lass.

She is Myrtie Mae Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne F. Brown of near Groveport, whose 980-pound Hereford steer Wednesday was named grand champion of the 1951 Pickaway County Fair.

A member of the Madison Livewires Livestock Club, which is advised by a brother, Wayne Brown Jr., Myrtie Brown's triumph in Wednesday's show climaxed three years of hard work by the youngster.

Three years ago, Myrtie abandoned girls' 4-H Club work to go into livestock work with the Livewires.

During the first year, the Madison Township lass won third place in the rigid steer show competition, and last year exhibited the reserve champion steer of the show, second only to fellow club member Clinton Teegardin.

With a little more hard work this year, Myrtie Mae has advanced into the throne of the beef cattle show—owner of the grand champ.

MYRTIE was graduated this Spring by Walnut Township school. She was the 12th youngster of the Wayne Brown family to complete schooling in the Walnut system.

In addition to being justifiably proud of her Hereford champion steer, the lass devotes much praise to the Livewires Club, which her brother guides so capably.

For the fourth straight year, the Livewires have won the club group of four beef animals, while always figuring prominently in the individual awards.

Only 10 members of the club entered projects this year, all of them faring well in competition. Paul Teegardin Jr. of the Club earned reserve championship honors in the steer contest.

Myrtie's grand champion steer was her lone entry in competition this year.

The outstanding beef animal was purchased last December from the N. G. Archer farm near Lockbourne at a weight of 550 pounds.

Fattening the animal through the Spring and early Summer, the lass was fearful that her steer would not be heavy enough to go to the top.

"DUB," MYRTIE's nickname for the champ, came through in true championship style, though, winning its heavyweight class in breed, best of breed and finally topping all other breeds for the title.

In all, "Dub" earned three trophies, six ribbons and the grand championship Hereford banner which has been posted over the champ's stall in the first cattle tent.

Making sure that no one will overlook her champion, the lass and several willing friends early Thursday tacked up a sign at the entrance of the tent, proclaiming that the "grand champion steer" is there.

Myrtie will place the prime beef animal on the auction block during the annual 4-H Club sale at 8 p. m. Friday in the show barn.

What to do with the money is a poser for the lass, however. If this year's sale goes as past sales have gone, the youngster can expect to pocket about $600 in cash from the sale of "Dub."

Miss Brown will still be eligible to compete in the 1952 show, but was undecided Thursday whether she will enter a project in the future show.

Third in her first year project, second last year and at the top of the class this year, the Madison Township lass has cleared all of the hurdles facing her and has no more fields to conquer.

Elinor Williams'

Teen Tips

"Would it be wrong to write letters to your boy friend this Summer? asks a 'teenie'.

"He lives about 15 miles out of town. I like the boy very much and he likes me, too, but he hardly ever gets to town because he has to help on the farm. Please give me some advice on this."

It's OK to write to your boy friend if you keep your letters friendly and casual—not gooey or affectionate, because letters sometimes are not as private as they should be.

If you see him soon, it would be a good idea to mention writing letters to see if he's for it or not. "Am I going to hear from you when you're back home?" or something similar.

But if you're not likely to see him soon, it's perfectly all right you would to any other friend—to write a chatty letter—just as saying that you were wondering how things are with him, how does he like the farm, what does he do for fun in his spare time, etc.

Tell him what goes on with people you both know or relate a funny incident that you think would interest him. Tell him if somebody has asked for him recently; everybody likes to be remembered. And ask questions to help him get started on a reply! Letter-writing isn't easy for some boys.

Wait for an answer from him

Red Journal Confirms Unrest In Bulgaria

NEW YORK, Aug. 3—Officials of the Crusade for Freedom said today that their own reports of unrest in high Bulgarian Communist circles have been confirmed "straight from the horse's mouth."

For months, the radio has been broadcasting to people behind the Iron Curtain stories of unrest, not only in Bulgaria but

COMPETITION IS LIGHT

More Than 85 Winners In Fair Open Dairy Test

More than 85 prize winners were named Thursday during the open dairy cattle show of the 1951 Pickaway County Fair.

Although total number of animals entered in this year's show hovered at about the 100 mark, competition was extremely light in most departments.

A huge show by ordinary standards, Thursday's open class contest offered 21 classes for each of the four breeds judged.

By virtue of the long list of classes, many of the events boasted only one animal in competition, that animal automatically winning its class.

Largest number of entries in any one class of the show was in the senior heifer calf of the Jersey show, where eight animals vied for honors.

FROM THERE, the number in each class veered downward sharply until in most events only the single animal was shown.

But gratifying to local dairy herdsman in the show were the performances of county 4-H Club youngsters who entered the competition.

Almost without fail, the fine animals exhibited earlier in the day during the 4-H competition found themselves high in the listings when the contests were ended.

Because of the size of the departments in the show and because no champion of show was selected, no single person or group in the open class can be singled out for special acclaim.

Winners of the 1951 dairy cattle open show are listed below:

COMPETITION IS LIGHT

More Than 85 Winners In Fair Open Dairy Test

More than 85 prize winners were named Thursday during the open dairy cattle show of the 1951 Pickaway County Fair.

Although total number of animals entered in this year's show hovered at about the 100 mark, competition was extremely light in most departments.

A huge show by ordinary standards, Thursday's open class contest offered 21 classes for each of the four breeds judged.

By virtue of the long list of classes, many of the events boasted only one animal in competition, that animal automatically winning its class.

Largest number of entries in any one class of the show was in the senior heifer calf of the Jersey show, where eight animals vied for honors.

FROM THERE, the number in each class veered downward sharply until in most events only the single animal was shown.

But gratifying to local dairy herdsman in the show were the performances of county 4-H Club youngsters who entered the competition.

Almost without fail, the fine animals exhibited earlier in the day during the 4-H competition found themselves high in the listings when the contests were ended.

Because of the size of the departments in the show and because no champion of show was selected, no single person or group in the open class can be singled out for special acclaim.

Winners of the 1951 dairy cattle open show are listed below:

A-Expert, Wife In Suicide Pact
COLUMBUS, Aug. 3—Police theorized today that internationally-known atom bomb chemist Oliver M. Urbain and his wife died in a suicide pact.

The bodies of Doctor and Mrs. Dorothy M. Urbain were discovered yesterday afternoon in a Columbus residential hotel, a pistol shot through the head of each.

Dr. Urbain, well known scientifically for his research in colloidal chemistry and metallurgy, held a citation from the U. S. government for his work with the Atomic Energy Commission.

Only One Local Team Left In District Test

Three of the four Pickaway County softball teams entered in the 1951 district tournament in Portsmouth were eliminated from this year's chase Thursday night.

Dumped following their second games in the tourney were Kingston and Harpster and Yost, while Dunlaps of Williamsport forfeited.

Only Top Hat softballers, last year's district champs, remain in the tourney at present.

The Hatters were dropped into the loser's bracket last week. They are slated to play again at about 10 p. m. Sunday in an effort to advance in the lower bracket.

Harpster and Yost youngsters suffered a 10-0 defeat at the hands of Schmitts Dairyemen Thursday, the game called at the end of the fifth following a five-run spree by the Dairy team.

The Circleville hardware team collected three safeties in the abbreviated encounter, although bobbling the ball three times. Its opponent won with 10 runs of five hits.

The Kingston team collected four runs on four hits and two errors by Belfast, while Belfast won the test with seven runs of 6 hits and five Kingston juggles.

Dunlaps of Williamsport forfeited out of the tourney in the opening game of the evening when it failed to field a team.

Meanwhile, Circleville Top Hatters have entered a 16-team invitational tourney in Bremen and will begin play in the contest Friday night. The Hatters last year were defeated in the Bremen semifinals.

recorded. So elated over his good fortune was VanCamp that he declared he would "let good enough alone" and declined to drive Air Pilot the next two dashes.

Instead, VanCamp commissioned the talented Lou Huber Jr. to take Air Pilot in hand. Huber drove the stallion to victory in the second and third heats. These two victories did Huber as much good as they did VanCamp and Air Pilot. It added two more victories to Huber's impressive string.

At the last tabulation made by the U. S. Trotting Association, young Huber ranked eighth in the nation as a winning driver. When My Volo chalked the new track record, he was pitted against pacers who had enviable records. My Volo's record is 2:04 1-5, two-fifths of a second faster than his mark here.

Opposing the Gay Song offspring were such sidewheelers as Princess Chief (2:03), Belwin Bunter (2:04 2-5) and Try Wyn (2:00 2-5).

TRY WYN HAD been touted as the horse to beat, but this black horse by Tryax checked in three-four-five in finishing.

Princess Chief was the horse to keep an eye on in the second and third sprints after My Volo set the track mark. Railbirds said that this six-year-old brood mare by Chief Abbedale would never have a better opportunity to grab herself a fine record.

And Belwin Bunter, a gelding owned by John Martindale of near Circleville, was credited as the don't-be-surprised entry. He did win the second dash, but My Volo was not to be denied the other two heats.

The third race of the afternoon was a free-for-all trot with Dandy Dick, a brown horse owned by Dwight Wilcox of Columbus setting the pace and winning two of the three heats. The third was taken by Red Chuck, a Hanover product.

Dandy Dick followed Air Pilot's example and established a new record for himself. Previous to Thursday, Dandy Dick was a 2:10 trotter; his Thursday performance brought him down into the 2:08 class.

Thursday's speed program was by far the finest ever offered in Circleville. And while an exact count of spectators could not be determined, observers opined that Thursday gallery may have been a record.

ACTUALLY there were 780 paid admissions to the grandstand. In seats, too, were fair officials and agricultural society members who carried passes. And there appeared to be more non-paying spectators along the fences than there were in the grandstand.

Young Huber proved to be the leading driver of the local meeting as he drove six winners. McKinley Kirk and Slim Shilling were tied for second place with three victories each.

Another record of a sort was established Thursday when 15-year-old Billy Grove of London established himself as the youngest driver ever to compete on the local track.

He appeared in the first heat of the 22 Class Trot piloting Tuffy Willard, a black gelding. Tuffy finished last in a field of eight that first heat, acted up badly especially after he cut one of his knees. Billy asked that Tuffy be scratched the second and third heats.

The judges agreed. After all, Tuffy and Billy are the same age. And 15 for a horse is comparable to well past three score and ten in a human.

This will be Tuffy's last

Park Program Nearing Finale

Seventh week of this year's eight-week Ted Lewis Park playground was to have been ended Friday with a baseball game, handicraft classes and contests. Final week of the program, which is sponsored jointly by Circleville Kiwanis Club and the city board of education, will begin Monday with a swimming trip to Gold Cliff Park.

In Thursday's park program, Tom Miller was treated for earning the title of champion marble shooter in the park.

Dick West, supervisor of the program, said activities for next week's closing program have not been fully mapped out yet.

However, here is the schedule for Monday and Tuesday for the kiddies:

Monday—Swimming, 10 a. m. until noon; checkers tournament, 2 p. m.; Jacks tournament for girls, 3 p. m.

Tuesday—Basketball, 9 a. m.; softball, 10 a. m.; rope-skipping for girls, 1 p. m.; pepper tournament for boys, 2 p. m.; and sidewalk tennis tourney, 3 p. m.

year to race and Billy wanted to let the old campaigner take it easy in his waning weeks of eligibility. The U. S. Trotting Association has ruled that age 15 is the last year for a harness horse to enter competition.

Presiding judge for Thursday's program was Frank Riley of Richmond. He replaced Bob Steele who directed the Tuesday-Wednesday programs. Steele was under contract to head judging at Plain City Thursday. Starter all three days here was Carl Weinland of New Carlisle.

Atlanta Entry Wins Again In 4-H Sheep Show

Robert Peck Exhibits Top Mart Lamb

Minnie Davey Wins Showmanship Title

Robert Peck of Atlanta has won top honors in the 4-H Club sheep show of the 1951 Pickaway County Fair.

Peck, a member of the Perry Township Jr. Farmers Club, exhibited the top market lamb during the competition, outclassing a field of 27 other youthful contestants.

The Atlanta lad automatically won the grand championship of the market lamb show when his entry soared to the head of the class.

Peck's victory in the show continued a string of wins by Atlanta youngsters, started several years ago by Donald Buck, now ineligible to compete.

Reserve champion honors during the market lamb show were won by Minnie P. Davey of the Madison Livewires Club, whose lamb placed second in the straight competition.

A FEATURE of the sheep show was the sheep showmanship contest, where the youngsters, rather than the animals, were judged for their ability in the show ring.

Winning the coveted showmanship prize was Miss Davey, while Carl Krieger of the Duvall Go-Getters ranked second.

Other first place winners in the sheep show were Nathan Wilson of Pickaway Livestock Club, winner in ewe lamb competition; and Barbara Stoe of Future Farmers of Monroe in ewe over one years old.

Minnesota Clubs Stressing Foods

Some 49,200 4-H club members in Minnesota will be emphasizing three major food-producing projects this year — field crops, garden and poultry.

They are among nearly two million youths throughout the nation who will be doing their part in the mobilization program by participating in 4-H club activities.

In these projects 4-H boys and girls learn new agricultural techniques and farming practices.

Three Petitions Are Filed Here

Three petitions seeking public office next November have been filed in Pickaway County board of elections office.

The petitions were filed by Harry A. Kern of Mt. Sterling Route 1 for Monroe Township trustee, Nelson Winfough of Williamsport Route 1 for justice of the peace of Monroe Township and Marvin Rhoades of Circleville Route 3 for member of Jackson Township board of education.

In December, 1950, the Military Air Transport Service flew 6,352 battle casualties and other patients from the Far East to the United States.

Average Sheep Flock Found Money-Maker

The farm flock is coming into its own, sheep experts report.

Long known by the good shepherd to be a highly valuable piece of farm property, it is now being discovered by the experts to be the most profitable livestock on the farm, when judged on the solid basis of profit produced per $100 of feed.

The old values of the farm flock are there as always. The high prices of market lambs and wool, which prices spring from the supply and demand factors.

Sheep numbers in the United States are the lowest in 85 years. There were 52,000,000 head of stock sheep in 1940; there are 27,000,000 head now.

Also, the native flock of sheep is in better position than ever in competition with the western feeder lamb. For one thing the cost of rail haul from the range to the midwest feed lot has sharply increased. For another, the demand from the west coast for lambs for slaughter has sharply increased with the rise of west coast human population. And so it is that the flock of sheep on the home farm in the upper midwest is a more and more valuable property.
